IRRIGATION ARGUMENTS

Mr. Newlands' Speech in the House.

Our Representative Scores Telling Points.

Mr. Chairman, the question of irrigation has been before the Congress of the United States for many years. Thorough investigation has been made of this subject by expert employees of the government, by Army officers, by the officers of the United States Geological Survey, and a vast amount of accurate data has been collected, and the time is now ripe for action.

The two political parties of the United States, recognizing this fact, made declarations in favor of the reclamation of arid lands in their national platforms. The Republican convention met first and made a clear and unequivocal declaration in this line.
The Democratic convention met next, and I had the honor to be one of the committee of platform of that convention and a plank provided for the storage of water and the reclamation of the arid lands for settlement by homeseekers received the special consideration of the members of that committee, received their unanimous support—basically the unanimous support. And I wish to say to the gentlemen on this side of the House that the question is foreclosed, so far as party action is concerned, by the deliberate judgment of the entire party, and that no man can vote against the reclamation of arid lands without violating the solemn obligations of his party.

Now, the question comes up as to the expediency and wisdom of the particular amendment. That is a matter, of course, upon which we have the right of deliberation and the right of judgment.
Commitment to a full and comprehensive scheme of the storage of water and the reclamation of arid lands does not necessarily commit us to every scheme for the reclamation of arid lands, whether chimerical or wise. We are simply committed to the general principle and to good faith in dealing with the question in legislation.

Now, as to the expediency of this amendment. What is this amendment? It provides for the storage of water at the head waters of the Mississippi river. What is the Mississippi river? A tributary of the Mississippi river. Where does it take its rise? In the Rocky Mountains. From what sources are these great navigable streams, the Mississippi and Missouri, fed? From the Rocky Mountains, largely.

There are numerous streams flowing from the Rocky Mountains which are tributary to the Missouri and Mississippi, rivers which feed these streams and maintain their flow.

What is the trouble with the great navigable rivers? The trouble is at times they are torrential floods and at times the water is so low as to impede navigation. We provide against floods by erecting levees. I do not contend against the wisdom of that procedure, but I claim that we should supplement that by preventing the floods; and, as the gentleman from Colorado (Mr.
Shafer) says, it can not be done by one reservoir, but it can be done by a series of reservoirs throughout the entire intermountain region, reservoirs which will preserve and conserve these flood waters and hold them on tap, responsive to the demands of science.

Mr. Chairman, I offer the following amendment.

"Reservoirs on and near the Humboldt River, Nevada: For the construction of a reservoir on Rook Creek, a tributary to the Humboldt River, in accordance with the estimates of the hydraulic engineers of the Geographical Survey, reported to the Secretary of the Interior and printed in Part IV of the Twentieth Annual Report of said Survey, $62,000.

"For the construction of a reservoir on the Lower Humboldt River, in accordance with the estimate above referred to, $41,240."

Mr. Newlands spoke on the amendment as follows:

Mr. Chairman, this is an amendment asking for a total appropriation of about $100,000 for the construction of two reservoirs on the Humboldt River, in Nevada. That river is the most important river in the State. It flows from the eastern to the western part of the State, a distance of three or four hundred miles, and is through a valley whose soil is as rich as that of the Nile.

The difficulty with that river is that it is a flood during the periods of March, April and May, when the water's least needed for cultivation, and the flood waters rush down in the sink of the desert and form a great lake called Humboldt Lake, about 35 miles long and 10 or 15 miles wide. That lake measures the untutilized waters of the Humboldt River, and if these waters are kept stored at the head or at the side of the stream in reservoirs provided by this amendment, they will maintain in a large degree a measured and sustained flow of the stream, thus permitting a larger utilization of the flood waters by reason of the certainty that later on the lands irrigated by the flood waters will not lack water in a time when it is most required to prevent cultivation.

Now, Mr. Chairman, this matter has been thoroughly examined and reported upon by the United States Geological Survey. Careful estimate have been made of the cost. The flow has been measured. The flow has been estimated in periods of high water and in periods of drought, and you will find in the last annual report of the Geological Survey some 25 or 30 pages taken up with estimates of the amount of water that can be stored, the cost of storage, and most accurate and careful estimates of the expenditure which will be required to accomplish the storage of these waters as contemplated by the amendment.

You will see in that report a diagram, such as that which I hold in my hand, that indicates by lines the height of the flood tide and the low-water mark.
This gives accurate measurements for the entire twelve months; and you will observe that the flood water is concentrated within two or three months in the spring and early summer, while the rest of the year there is low water.

Now, I submit that it is utterly impossible under the existing law for any individual or corporation to undertake this work of reclamation. The Congress of the United States has wisely pursued the policy of preserving the public lands of the country for actual settlers and declaring against land monopolies by providing for small holdings of land—160 acres of land watered by the heavens and 320 acres of arid lands.

But when you go into the reclamation of the arid lands you must have concentrated holdings of thirty or forty or sixty thousand acres of land in order to warrant the expense of storage and diverting ditches. The Government alone has such large holdings, and it is against public policy to grant them to individuals or corporations. The policy of the government requires that they should be held for settlement in small tracts by actual settlers, and this involves such a conservation of the waters as will promote such settlements.

Now, I repeat, there is no law under which this system of reclamation can be undertaken. It can not be done in a small way, as I have said, by the settlers themselves on these small tracts of land. I ask, then, What is the obligation of the Government in the premises? I answer, to save and conserve the flood waters of the rivers for purposes of irrigation. Now, you improve the rivers for purposes of navigation because navigation is a public use.

But irrigation is also a public use.
It is a public use subject to the control of the law. There is no reason that applies to the expenditure of public money for promotion of navigation that does not apply to the promotion of irrigation. In addition, the Government is the owner of these arid lands. The question is, Shall they be prepared by some rational and comprehensive plan for settlement?

GOOD-BYE TO THE SUBSIDY BILL.

The JOURNAL has been holding its breath and listening for some time to learn if possible what move would next be made by the friends of the Subsidy bill to secure its passage.

Senators Frye and Hanna have received a lesson that should be of value to these gentlemen in the future should they again seek to become champions of other fraudulent measures in Congress. The exposure by Senator Teller of what appears to be a swindle of the most pronounced type, came like a thunder bolt to the United States Senate. The bill instead of aiding American built ships was intended to aid, by providing subsidies, foreign built vessels owned by a few interested persons.

The bill if not fraudulent is certainly surrounded by its lineage in such a manner that the reflection given is one that was fraud from its beginning to the exposed end of the bill when it was in a measure defeated in the Senate of a refusal of that body to take it up for consideration.

It provides as submitted by Senator Frye that the subsidies shall be limited to foreign built ships whose construction had been contracted for these contracts were filed with Mr. Gage, United States Treasurer in the absence of any law demanding such filing.

A question arises upon these contracts respecting the necessity there was for filing them, with the United States Treasurer when there is no law requiring such contracts to be filed with any officer of the government. It was revealed by the contracts filed that a few interested parties who were to profit by the bill, were the contracting parties for these foreign built vessels.

The contracts were foreign made contracts which makes the fraud more clear when under the guise of aiding American commerce. Mr. Griscom, president of the International Steamship Company was the man who filed these contracts for foreign built ships.

There were other contracts filed by other parties who are ship-builders in addition to those filed by Mr. Griscom. A comparison of the law with the contracts reveals that the persons named in the contracts are the persons named in the bill that provides for subsidizing foreign built ships, which is not all there is to the fraud, as it appears from a provision in the bill that the subsidy is limited to foreign built ships now under construction, which has the effect to limit all payments to the persons named in the bill and in the contracts.

The story, as told by the bill and contracts, reveals one of the methods used to transfer public funds from the United States treasury to line the pockets of private individuals, while the people pay the taxes which are levied from them by private monopolies and trusts that have received life from their hard earnings.

This fraudulent bill, which removed its death from a knock-out given it, was not understood by the people, as it was provided in darkness and brought to light under cover, but its fraudulent provisions were discovered in time to prevent its passage. It was presented under cover as a bill to foster American enterprise in commerce and to aid American ship building, while the reverse of all there was claimed for it was true, as it fostered ship building in foreign countries and operated directly against American trade when carried in American bottoms.

Will the people at any time in the future let their eyes open in a way that they can see what is going forward at Washington to plunder the treasury, and through the methods used to rob the treasury, take from them their hard earnings? There is a notable fact connected with the discovery by Senator Teller of the fraud in the bill, which is the seeming pleasure of the Republican press over the discovery, which all good citizens will continue to hope is real.

CLUB SHOULD REMAIN SOVEREIGN

There is an unexplained matter connected with Cuba that looks a little black at a distance in these war times, when Subsidies steeped in fraud make the faces of honest Republicans pale. It might be well to make known the purpose of the Administration when it put forward a claim to rights in Cuba.

Is there any just cause back of a request that the Constitutional convention in Cuba recognize in the Constitution of the country the right of the United States to pass upon matters respecting Cuba's financial affairs and foreign relations, or that the United States be given certain powers to interfere when the property of American citizens in Cuba is involved or that the United States have certain naval stations on the island.

The Secretary of War has taken upon himself the duty to write to the convention about the matters, which is not the thing to do when viewed in the light of the declaration of Congress made in 1898 war was declared against Spain to deliver Cuba from the Spanish yoke.

Has honor and honesty departed from the United States government as administered under a Republican administration? The Cuban are a weak people, it is true, but they are left to them to suffer and offer them of their rights to the United States, which, in order to be a free offering, should be based under the circumstances, on the fact that the United States with this bill to be most open and disinterested manner.

Can it be possible that the government at Washington has lost its self respect, that it has lost many rights against a weak people, it is true, but to the end of its administration? Will the government become a trust-breaker by setting aside its self assumed obligation to care and defend a weak people, or will it continue to sit back from the island with idle hands?

LECTURE

The Well-Known Humorist Delights a Reno Audience.

Mr. Perkins "fine come" and "has come" but his "truth and veracity" that were expected to arrive from a man on a freight train didn't show much time for the lecture.

Of course, Mr. Melville D. Langdon, who ever his true name is, was not expected to adhere absolutely to the plain, unvarnished truth. He couldn't do that and hold his job; but when he admitted that the verity of Nevada newspapermen was questionable and that Reno schoolmarms couldn't slide down banisters, he laid himself liable to severe criticism.

But as everybody in the auditorium of the Methodist Church got aching sides and improved digestion as a result of his talk, this paper will not be harsh with the poor man.

Ellis droll and amusing but he is more. There is somewhat of philosophy and an under-current of genial goodness and wholesomeness running through his make-up. Reno may be indeed grateful to Messrs. Bray and Brandon for having secured this valuable addition to the Star lecture course.

"Uncle Josh
Spruceby."

"Uncle Josh Spruceby," the first of many rural plays now being presented in the city, will be seen at McKisick's Saturday evening.
This production is said to be different from others as it contains much humor as well as pathos, and the result is a most exciting and intense effect ever produced. The scenes of the play are laid in Vermont and New York which gives ample opportunity for portraying the simple rustic characters in the country as well as the many incidents that befall the simple country folk that visit the metropolis.

New Wall Paper.

We have received the greater portion of our new stock of papers for this spring's trade.

Prices are twenty to twenty-five per cent lower than last year, while the goods are of better finish and design.
We have reduced the prices of our hold over stock to meet the new prices of the new goods.

We have bought the most of our paper from the east and direct from the factory. We have a larger stock than ever before and so have obtained larger discounts, thereby being enabled to sell our goods cheap.

We will sell to you from 10 cents per double roll to three and four dollars per single roll. You will make a mistake by not looking over our stock before sending away.
